8. US DEPARTMENT OF HEALTH AND HUMAN SERVICES, OFFICE OF INSPECTOR GENERAL REPORT: "Hospice Beneficiaries' Use of Respite Care," (OEI-02-06-00222, March 2008, .pdf format, 6p.).
Summary:
Respite care is short-term inpatient care that provides respite for the individual's family or other persons caring for the individual at home. This memorandum report is based on an analysis of Medicare Part A claims for hospice care. We found that 2 percent of all hospice beneficiaries received respite care during 2005 and most of these beneficiaries received the care for a total of 5 days or less. We also found a number of instances in which the use of respite care may have been inappropriate. Fifty-four beneficiaries received respite care longer than the 5 consecutive days allowed by Federal regulations, and 62 beneficiaries received respite care while residing in nursing facilities, even though respite care is designed to relieve the beneficiary's caregiver. We will provide additional information about these potentially inappropriate cases to CMS. In addition, we note that the information that is available on hospice claims limits CMS's ability to determine whether hospice agencies are complying with the requirement that they may not be reimbursed for more than 5 consecutive days of respite care at a time. <http://www.oig.hhs.gov/oei/reports/oei-02-06-00222.pdf>
