

1. Jerald Bybee, M.D., and Craig Gurney are the UI Carver College of Medicine's 2008 recipients of the Leonard Tow Humanism in Medicine Awards, which are sponsored by the Arnold P. Gold Foundation. The awards recognize a faculty member and medical student whose interactions with patients exemplify the highest standards of compassion and sensitivity. Bybee is adjunct assistant professor of family medicine; he practices in Maquoketa, Iowa, and serves as a preceptor for UI medical students during their family medicine clerkships.

Craig Gurney is a fourth-year UI medical student and as a third-year UI medical student in 2007 was selected to receive a Fellowship in Aging through the UI Center on Aging. Gurney will begin residency training in medicine and pediatrics at University Hospital in Cincinnati, Ohio, after graduation. Posted May 5, 2008.
